

Jaclyn Carlson

Jaclyn Carlson, a three sport varsity letterman and Tri-Captain her senior year, she played soccer in the fall, but really excelled running winter and spring track for the Spartans between 1993-1997. She earned eleven varsity letters.

In the fall, Jaclyn played midfielder for the women's soccer team. Coach Chapman called her "the play-maker" for her goal scoring and ability to crash the net every chance she had. During winter and spring, Jaclyn could be found on the track running the 300 yarder, 4x100, 4x200 or 4x400 relay.

Freshman year, Jaclyn placed more times than not in the top three in both the 300 and relays. The girl's winter track team went on to win the Middlesex League title in 1994. The following year, Jaclyn was named to the spring track all-star team for her performance in running the 4x100 relay and was named one of four Stoneham's Top Athletes for the 1994-95 school year given out by Athletic Director Mike Lahiff. Junior year continued to be exciting for Jaclyn; she was again named to the spring track all-star team as well as her relay team winning the States gold medal declaring them the 1996 New England Relay Champions.

A graduate of Emerson College, with a Bachelor degree in Science in Speech, Jaclyn resides in Australia with her fiancé James White and infant son Finn. She is a Global Product Manager for Australia's largest independent women's website "Mamamia Women's Network." Jaclyn recently started a marketing blog called BlogSociety.com.au and designed and held six online marketing courses called "Digital Bravery" for new business entrepreneurs.
